ABOUT THE COVER

The King of the Road, and the unofficial national icon. It is impossible to go out onto the street of Manila and not come across at least a dozen jeepneys. The Jeepney came about when enterprising Filipinos repainted and repurposed left-over American jeeps from World War 2. Today, no two jeepneys look alike, with each one a canvas for the owner's expression. This symbol of Filipino creativity and ingenuity will once again be a symbol of honor and pride for the Philippines as the De La Salle University Debate Society brings the world to Manila in the 32nd staging of the World Universities Debate Championship, more commonly known as “Worlds,” with the theme “Take Me to Manila.”

So as the Organizing Committee prepares to host the Worlds in true Filipino hospitality, this quarterly magazine will bring you all the latest happenings in and around the staging of the De La Salle Worlds 2011-2012.

DE LA SALLE UNIVERSITY WILL HOST THE 2011-2012 Worlds Universities Debating Championship (WUDC), winning over Hart House, University of Toronto, during the World Universities Debating Council Meeting held last January 1 in Antalya, Turkey.

DLSU won the bid via a lopsided 72-28 final vote, anchored on a solid Asian bloc voting 38-0. Convenor Dino de Leon, a La Salle alumnus, led the campaign activities and made the official pitch to the Council. De Leon believes that the Philippines, specifically DLSU, was highly favored because of the lower registration costs; the assurance that the host can provide ESL/EFL adjudicators to ensure responsiveness to all the issues of not only geographical regions but also linguistic groups; its promise to fly in 66 of the best judges in the world; and availability of diverse dietary requirements such as Halal, kosher, and vegetarian food.

The co-chief adjudicators for the tournament will be WUDC 2007 Best Speaker Sam Block (Cambridge Union) and 2004 Philippine Best Speaker, Lucinda Teresa David (DLSU). The Tabulation System, on the other hand, will be handled by Asian Champion Muhammad Abdul Latif.

WUDC or “Worlds” is the largest debating tournament and one of the larger international student events worldwide. Over 1,400 delegates from more than 50 countries are expected to participate in the 9-day event.

WUDC is the biggest, most prestigious, international debating tournament in the world.

Students from eleven different institutions were educated in the rudiments of debate through plenary and commune sessions conducted by noted alumni and current members of the La Salle Debate Society.

In order to spark further interest and develop a competitive spirit, BSDC was also host to the First Binondo Schools Debate Championship.

The Championship phase concluded with the Philippine Institute of Quezon City (PIQC) A winning the championship against UNO High School (UNO) A with Gillian Pua of PIQC A winning the Best Speaker in the Finals.

The teams debated on whether teacher’s salaries should be based on the performance of their students, with PIQC at the Affirmative. PIQC A won in a 4-3 split decision.

PIQC A was composed of Gillian Pua, Sarah Wong and Charles Tsoi. UNO High School A, on the other hand, was composed of Sheila Tan, Ysah Shio and Matthew Que.

Ayrton Young of the Quezon City Christian Academy also won the award of Best Speaker of the tournament.

“I’ve always wanted to debate in high school, but there was no avenue to do so. I’m glad that we were able to introduce the art of debating to eager Filipino-Chinese students and I hope that this would be the start of more competitive debating from these institutions” said Bryan Lim Chua, Convenor of BSDC and alumnus of Grace Christian High School.

The BSDC was co-sponsored by the La Salle Debate Society and De La Salle Worlds with support from the Center for Pop Music Philippines, John Robert Powers, Business Mirror and Business World.
LA SALLE DEBATE SOCIETY SUCCESSFULLY HOSTS REGIONAL HIGH SCHOOL DEBATE TOURNAMENT

Last September, the La Salle Debate Society (LSDS) and the DLSU Worlds Organizing Committee hosted the 2nd Asian Schools Debate Championship (ASDC)—a prestigious debate competition aimed towards building a stronger high school debate community in the Asian region. For five days, De La Salle University became the convening place and melting pot of brilliant young minds from Bangladesh, Sri Lanka, South Korea, Indonesia, Thailand, Malaysia, and the Philippines.

ASDC fostered high-spirited and fierce competition for debaters, adjudicators and public speakers alike, having a total of seven preliminary rounds and the usual break rounds starting from the Octofinals to the Grand Finals, and elimination and finals round for the public speaking contest.

Although LSDS had to cater to young and presumably innocent high school students, it did not hold back on the three socials during the tournament – the Opening Dinner, Break Night Party, and Championship Dinner. The Break Night Party, in particular, became one of the highlights of the tournament where the participants were treated to their own private New York-themed party complete with Mocktails (non-alcoholic cocktails) and a DJ at the 21st Floor of the Br. Andrew Gonzalez Hall.

In the end, it boiled down to a heated round between Ateneo de Manila High School (ADMHS 2) of the Philippines and Daewon Foreign Language School (DAEWON 1) of South Korea during the Grand Finals on the motion, “THBT governments should not be allowed to own media companies.” The Philippines held on to the championship title one more time as ADMHS 2 was announced the victor of the 2nd ASDC in a 6-5 split decision. However, DAEWON 1 did not go home empty handed as Jeewon Yoo was awarded as the Best Speaker of the finals and of the tournament.
The 2nd ASDC was a milestone in its hopefully long string of running years as LSDS turns over the tournament to Daewon Foreign Language School, who won the right to host the 3rd ASDC over Claret School of Quezon City (Philippines) during the first Asian High School Council Meeting presided by the De La Salle Worlds Convenor and ASDC Founder, Dino de Leon. Certainly, the whole Asian High School debate community shall be waiting for the 3rd ASDC with anticipation of what kind of debating culture and twist Seoul will be able to offer.

Congratulations to the winners of the LAST JULY, THE YOUTH NETWORKING ZONE PROVIDED AN AVENUE for young people to conduct events that will serve the interests of its fellow young people such as film showing, seminars and symposium.

I was honored and privileged to have conducted a debate seminar workshop for young people at the YNWZ. My topic is about how debate can be a tool for discourse and information dissemination about HIV and AIDS especially when one talks about the aspect of policy making and decision making process and engaging talks with world leaders.

Moreover, it provided me an opportunity to invite young people who are students in their respective countries to join the Filipino debate community in 2011 as our country hosts the World Universities Debate Championship at De La Salle University. Ten schools have already committed to join and I am still following up my friends and network for other possible commitment to join.

It doesn’t come as a surprise that champion debater and public speaker Bianca Lagdameo would rather work on a fundraiser for WORLDS instead of throwing a lavish party for her friends on her birthday.

A champion debater and public speaker, Bianca has always been actively supportive of all the endeavors of the debate society.

More than 300 people came out to support the first pocket event of De La Salle Worlds on the evening of June 18, 2010 - a Movie Night featuring the Special Screening of Toy Story 3. The Audience composed of different interests lined up in front of the theater half an hour before the film, all excitedly anticipating the event. With the support coming from our sponsors, RFM Corporation and media partners, Business Mirror and Business World, the audience received Kettle Korn Popcorn, Selecta Milk Products, Alo Green Tea and a Swift Hotdog, and, of course, a warm welcome from the Worlds Organizing Committee.

These, plus a sheet of Toy Story stickers, came inside plastic bags sponsored by Business World. Gracing us with their enthusiasm for the project, Timezone also distributed game coupons to the children who watched the film. Although we and our sponsors fully knew what we gave those who participated the event - we made an inventory of things to be distributed; we followed protocol - it seemed nice to think that we had given more.

Various emotions filled the movie house. Laughter spread beginning from the short film before the feature presentation that eventually morphed into mixed feelings towards the end of the event. The sentimental cried, perhaps dug up their toys and selfishly hugged them forgetting that these inanimate items utilize their utility most in the hands of the age group which they were made for. Some thought the movie as a comedy treat and went home with laughing muscles eased that had made them easy to please - at least during the rest of the night. These were those who watched with critic’s eye and rose from their seats thinking of issues like the owner-toy relationship and innate nature of toys.

Again, thank you very much!
In the world of debate, few can claim to be as successful as Lucinda Teresa David during their entire debating career. She counts having been the Oxford Intervarsities (novice) champion, a two-time Cambridge Intervarsities Quarterfinalist among her most notable international achievements, not to mention bagging the national championship here in the Philippines.

More than a talented debater, Lucy is also a gifted public speaker. Her wit and humor has won her the prize of being Asian Best Public Speaker twice. As an adjudicator or debate judge, her ability to dissect arguments and give fair evaluation has brought her to the highest rounds in the most prestigious debate tournaments. Quite recently, she was invited to judge the Grand Finals of the Austral-Asian Debate Championship.

In a rare interview, we ask her about her aspirations and motivations as a competitive debater and speaker to get a glimpse of the debate world through Lucinda’s eyes.
Worlds Magazine: What made you stay in debate?

Lucy: I stayed long for the love of debate and the people in it. The debate society gave a lot to me in terms of opportunities and life skills. I wanted to give back in return. Teaching people to master debate is not an overnight process. Articulation is after all not just about confidence and pulling flowery words out of a hat. It’s about intelligence, honesty and heart. These things are neither easy to learn nor quick to teach so a certain length of time is required of any student or teacher of debate, which is why I guess I ended up staying as long as I did.

Worlds Magazine: Doesn’t it bother you to be arguing with other people?

Lucy: Only if I lose, I’m kidding, I think arguing has gotten a bad press actually. Arguing is not bad. If it gets heated and you pull out a gun from your car (I support a Gun Ban, btw), then it becomes horrifying.

But to me, arguing about issues and social policies as akin to subjecting an idea to the test. And it’s some weak ass experiment like a litmus test or what not. This test is of the fire and brimstone kind with people facing off and adversarially analysing each other’s ideas. The fiery nature of the exercise is important because it ensures that an idea will pass through a difficult passage in order for it to be implemented in society. Only then can we say to ourselves we might be wrong, but at least we did everything in our power (in terms of disclosure) to make sure we weren’t. That to me is what arguing and debating is.

Worlds Magazine: Don’t you get intimidated by international debaters?

Lucy: I’m a fairly confident person, but I have to admit, the first few times I went up against people from Harvard, Oxford or Cambridge and heard the lovely accents, everything they said sounded clever. They could be saying things like ‘please pass me that bottle of water’ and I couldn’t help but to be impressed, but the novelty passed. Their accents are still lovely, but their arguments can be taken down. In one crucial round, my partner, Grant and I went up against the best teams in World Universities Debating Championships, 3 Cambridge teams, The debate was about whether or we should tie aid to women’s rights happens to be one of my specialty topics. We defeated every single Cambridge team that round which until that round, we were still undefeated. People started calling us the Cambridge Slayers. I guess when I realized I could stand toe-to-toe with the best international debaters, I was no longer afraid.

Worlds Magazine: How does it feel to win prestigious tournaments?

Lucy: It was an amazing feeling to win the Oxford IV (novices). The incredibly impressive Oxford Union Chamber was filled to capacity. It is a very famous room with its even more famous alumni’s portraits lining the wall (the late Benazir Bhutto, the former president of Pakistan, Albert Einstein, King Henry the 8th, 13 Prime Ministers of England, several Nobel Prize winners, etc.). Everyone was in their tuxedos and gowns with a string quartet playing live music. The Hall grew quiet when they announced the winners. When they said our team name, there was a burst of applause. However, people couldn’t see us because we were the smallest in the room. They made the way for us in that thick crowd with everyone patting us on our shoulders or head as we made our way to get our trophy. It was a really cool experience.

Despite her many achievements, Lucy still strives to maintain and promote a scholarly lifestyle by joining and promoting various debate related tournaments and activities. Currently, she has been asked to be the Chief Adjudicator of the World Universities Debating Championship with champion debater, Sam Block. Together, Lucinda and Sam are developing an adjudication training program to help bridge the differences in the standards of judging by different debate societies.
Philippine Inter Collegiate Debate Championship,
University of the Philippines-Diliman: DLSU Team A composed of Jasper Go, Carl Reyes and the newly elected Team Captain, Julian Bautista reached the octofinals; and DLSU Team B composed of Joseph Rigodon, Kurt See and Paolo Santiago reached the quarterfinals.

1st United Asians Debate Championships (UADC),

DLSU A composed of Kurt See, Julian Bautista; DLSU B composed of Joseph Rigodon, Jasper Go, Paolo Santiago; and DLSU C Crystal Francisco, Dino de Leon and Paolo Franco reaching the Pre-Octofinals, Kurt See was also declared as the 8th Best Speaker in Asia.

Peking IV’s,
PEKING UNIVERSITY: Joseph Rigodon, and Kurt See, Junior Varsity Debaters reached the Grand Finals, while alumni debater Dino de Leon participated as adjudicator.

Manila Intervarsities (MINT):
The team composed of Joseph Rigodon, Kurt See and James Sy reached the Quarter Finals of the tournament. Dino de Leon was a DCA (Deputy Chief Adjudicator) and Carl Reyes was declared 3rd Best Adjudicator in the tournament.
